“ Prayers Brittany and for all of your family. One of my grandpas went to heaven 15 years ago. He’s still thought of almost daily. A bond no one could break. It’s good to know they are no longer in pain and in Heaven but so missed here. Hard isn’t even close to the emptiness of when they are not here with us. But it’s not goodbye. It’s will see you when God says it’s our time to join them and all loved ones thats gone before us. It was so hard for awhile. It really doesn’t get easier but in a way it does with time knowing they are better where they are now and forever our angel looking over us until we see them again. That piece of your heart here will always miss him and the tears will come when you don’t expect it. There is no way to explain how to get through certain loved ones loses but know you were loved and he knew you loved him. Always keep the good times close and smile you had those times and memories that can never be taken away. Until you see him again. Loves and prayers for you and your family and all of his friends. Always a call away.
