You were so young and beautiful, inside and out! You always were a better runner than me, you beat me to Heaven, but I will see you again someday!*

As I sit here and type this the thought arises that the words to convey the emotions felt do them an injustice. Cory, I did not know your wife, but my heart weighs heavy for you. My imagination of the daily struggle you continue to face I am sure falls short. I know these are only words, but it is all I have. My deepest condolences.
