““Hey ladies, bye ladies”... who is going to meet, greet and tell Patti and me this every afternoon as we leave work and you yell it out from a work cell? We start looking around for you because you are so short and we can't find you. There is a big void in our afternoon now. Just last week when we were leaving and you didn't yell at us, we started yelling for you. We miss you now and will continue to miss you every single day that goes by. We love you and will see you again.”
