“ Dear Wanda and family,

Please accept our heartfelt condolences concerning the passing away of your beloved mother. The dedicated influence of a loving mother and matriarch is a significant matter.

Aunt Myrtle is now at peace in the loving arms of the Lord.

May the Lord's blessings of comforting solace, continual peace, and abiding love sustain you and your family members during this difficult time of mourning. May you and your family walk the path of bereavement with an enduring eternal perspective of the happy family reunion to come in a far brighter place.

Loving regards,

Clyde, Amelia, Nicole, Christina, and Stephanie Triptow

During my life I have heard many sermons on the Resurrection. I can recite the events of that first Easter Sunday. I have marked in my scriptures passages regarding the Resurrection.

We know what the Resurrection is—the reuniting of the spirit and body in its perfect form. I am sure that if we can imagine ourselves at our very best, physically, mentally, spiritually, that is the way we will come back.

Can you imagine that? Life at our prime? Never sick, never in pain, never burdened by the ills that so often beset us in mortality?

The Resurrection is at the core of our beliefs as Christians. Without it, our faith is meaningless. The Apostle Paul said, “If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and [our] faith is also vain” (1 Corinthians 15:14).

In all the history of the world there have been many great and wise souls, many of whom claimed special knowledge of God. But when the Savior rose from the tomb, He did something no one had ever done. He did something no one else could do. He broke the bonds of death, not only for Himself but for all who have ever lived—the just and the unjust (see John 5:28–29).

When Christ rose from the grave, leaving the sacred empty tomb, becoming the firstfruits of the Resurrection, He made that gift available to all. And with that sublime act, He softened the devastating, consuming sorrow of those who have lost precious loved ones.

Parable of Immortality by Henry Van Dyke

*I am standing by the seashore.
A ship at my side spreads her white sails to the morning breeze and starts for the blue ocean.
She is an object of beauty and strength,
and I stand and watch
until at last she hangs like a peck of white cloud just where the sun and sky come down to mingle with each other.
Then someone at my side says, 'There she goes!
Gone where? Gone from my sight - that is all.
She is just as large in mast and hull and spar
as she was when she left my side and just as able to bear her load of living freight to the places of destination.
Her diminished size is in me, not in her.
And just at the moment when someone at my side says,
'There she goes! ',
there are other eyes watching her coming,
and other voices ready to take up the glad shout :
'Here she comes!'*

Sincerely,

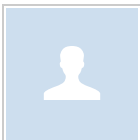

Clyde###imported-begin##Clyde Allan Triptow###imported-end##

“ Wanda, Sandra, Karen, Dorothy and Peggy,

We are sorry to hear of the loss of your beloved mother and sister. I know you and your families will miss her. She was very special and she and my mother, Erie, enjoyed many times together. They can now enjoy good times together in heaven along with other family members there. We will be out of town tomorrow and unable to attend the funeral. Our thoughts and prayers are with you and all the family.

Love,

Elaine (Ralph and Erie Slatton's middle daughter)###imported-begin##Elaine Slatton King and Gary King###imported-end##
