“ As I was visiting in Romania, she and her family hosted me for a month. While there, I learned and experience her deep, honest caring for others, something that only comes from the Holy Spirit living in her.

We could not communicate well as I am not a native Romanian but she kept me fed and made me feel loved. She would cook every night a delicious meal for her family and share it with me. She kept me well fed and not just through these meals but with that sweet smile, a sweet hand touching my face calling me frumoasa, beautiful in romanian. That comforted me while going through hard times.
